SPIR-IT

One of the most exciting weeks at MFHS is spirit week. This week is filled with crazy outfits, wild laughter, and unforgettable memories. This years dress-up days were Gender Bender Day, Blue and Gold Day, Jersey Day, Wacky Tacky Day, and the traditional Class Color Day.

This year some of the senior girls took a 'risky' action by dressing up like Tom Cruise in the movie, "Risky Business." This bold stunt portrayed the real meaning of spirit week; to have fun and promote school spirit. The teachers showed their school spirit by celebrating Principal Adreon's 40th (Over the Hill) birthday, and kicked off Spirit Week in all black.

Seniors of Mrs. Z's 4th hour adv. design class show off their school spirit by making a pyramid. These hallway 'roamers' got a little crazy taking pictures until Mr. Adreon called Mrs. Z asking why students were not in class.

First Attempt

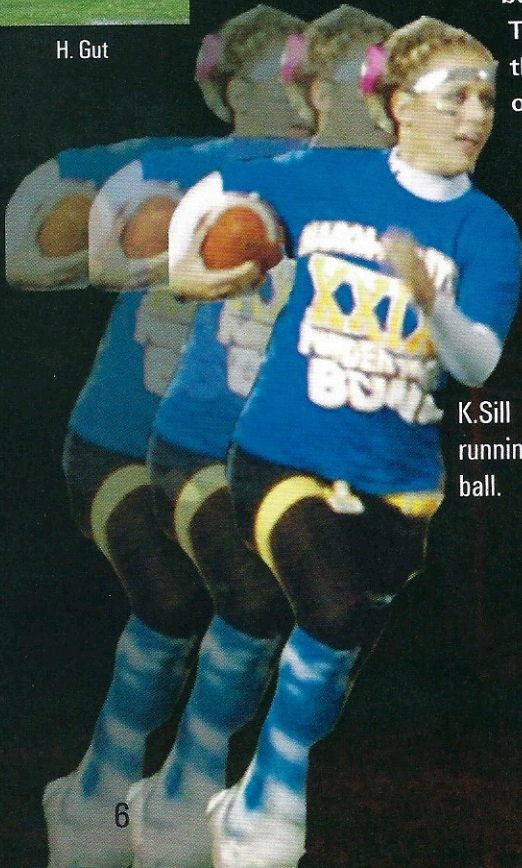

T. Taylor uses her magic fairy wings to soar through the air in attempt to catch the ball. Unfortunately her magic was not strong enough and the ball fell through her hands. However, she did receive two personal points for making the ball through the human hoop.

H. Gut

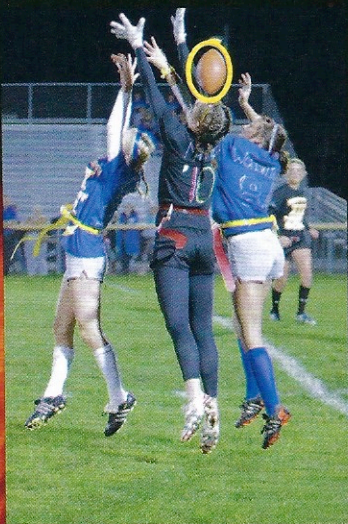

Once a year, the upperclassmen girls of Maroa-Forsyth compete in a friendly game of flag football. However, this game comes with a twist. Instead of wearing the traditional football jerseys, the girls dress up in crazy t-shirts which they decorate themselves with sparkles and rhinestones. As we all know, our school is EXTREMELY competitive. The game involves "accidental" tackling, bribing of the refs, and intimidating the underclassmen, but this is all done in the spirit of homecoming week. This year the class of 2010 conquered the field with their speed, agility, and dominant determination. Not only did the seniors win the powder puff for the 2nd straight year, but they also broke the school record for the number of touchdowns during a solitary game by scoring 3...what a knockout!

The "Winter" Games

In Maroa, Illinois.

At 8:30 AM on Field Day 2009, an announcement came through on the intercom. "Field Day will be held outside." Most students were pretty excited, until we all got outside. At around 40 degrees, this was the coldest Field Day anyone could remember. We borrowed jackets, we shivered, and we stayed close to our friends, but still finished the day with numb hands and feet. Nevertheless, each class tried hard to give the seniors some competition, but Field Day ended with a big win for the Class of 2010.

Dalton's stunt made the crowd "hoot and holler", and exemplified exteme school pride and spirit. In the background, T. Sims (behind) cheers while O. Hampton gives the nod of approval.

Tradition

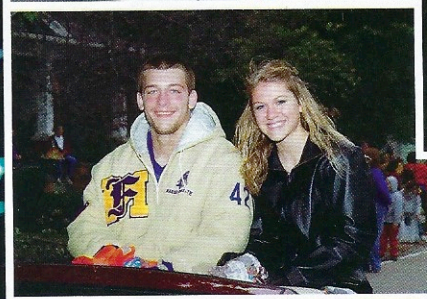

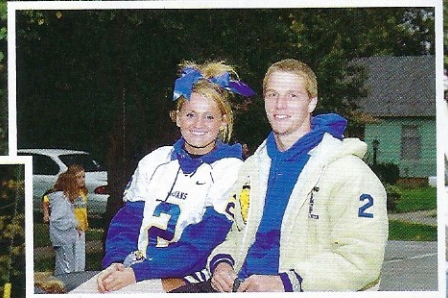

Every year, between September and October residents of Maroa and Forsyth unite for the Homecoming Parade. Children crowd the sidewalks of Maroa to cheer, wave, and catch candy, while parents line up to take pictures of floats. Starting at 3:00, float riders and innocent bystanders enjoy the spread of school spirit before the Homecoming football game. Thankfully, the dedication of parade participants and 'street liners' was not affected when the temperature dropped to the lower 50's, but felt closer to the 40's. With students riding on top of convertibles and on the backs of trailers, bundled up with coats and blankets on the 2nd of October, this Homecoming tradition was memorable to all.

If the attitude of this year's homecoming game could be summarized in one word it would be passion. Finishing the game with a win over Argenta Oreana 34-6 was an accomplishment for the Trojans. "It was nice to leave the field knowing my class has never lost a Homecoming game. We represented our community the way it deserves to be [represented]", said Senior Dalton Coventry.

Whether you're a girl getting your hair and make-up done, or you're a guy having your mom pick up your date's corsage and trying to look "spiffy", everyone ends up looking like Roman Gods and Goddesses. Maybe you were decorating the gym, deciding whom to nominate for court, or designing the bouquets for coronation, but nearly every Maroa-Forsyth student took part in the annual Homecoming Dance. Bright colors, loud music, pretty flowers, and good-looking couples were sights to see at this Roman-themed dance. This year, Cole Aschermann and Carmen Hatton were crowned as the 2009-2010 Homecoming King and Queen.

The Sims Squad

The Sims Family has been a part of the MFHS community for as long as anyone can remember, and now Taylor, Heidi, Alexis, and Destiny are the last of the Sims' to come through MFHS (at least for a while), and uniquely enough, all four are in a different grade. Clearly, Mr. and Mrs. Sims have had their hands full this year, with all of the children playing sports, preparing for college, adapting to freshman year, test prep- ping for the ACT, or simply the drama of raising four kids in the same household.

What annoys you most about Taylor?

Heidi -- "He is always so full of himself."

Alexis & Destiny -- "He always tries to be funny but he looks stupid and it embarrasses us."

What is it like getting ready in the morning?

Girls -- Taylor sleeps in til the last min.

Taylor -- I always get woken up by the girls getting ready.

SENIOR

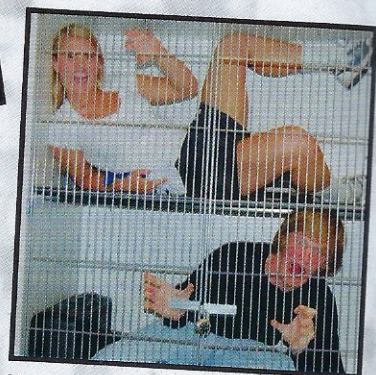

Every year the senior class conduct a survey that allows them to choose which classmate they feel fits the given title. Typically, the survey should be done individually, but that never happens. Immediately after the ballots are handed out, groups form, and the discussions begin.

Most Dramatic: M. Scott & T. Drew

Changed since freshman year: J. Sheary & M. Hatton

Class Clown: A. Cochran & C. Hatton

Most likely to become famous:

J. Hite & A. Thoms

SURVEY

"Should we vote (name) for best dressed, or for best hair?" "Should we vote for (name) for worst driver?, I remember when he/she..." As the survey goes on, numerous questions are asked, more names are dropped, hasty decisions are eventually made, but most of all, memories are refreshed.

Through the Years...

Kindergarten - Senior Year

From kindergarten to graduation we have walked through every hall, classroom, & gymnasium together.

We've experienced the new comers, the ones that left, the relationships, arguments, the nearly impossible subjects, not one but two state championships, the smell of 25 dead cats in the hallway, and yet through it all we had each other's backs. From kindergarten to the future, no matter where we end up we will all be there for each other.

Student of the Month

I am entering the Marines.

Remember When...

- Andrew Cochran and Cody Ortmann climbed the interstate sign and greeted people entering Forsyth.
- Divya Verma got a bird thrown at her.
- Evan Marin ate woodchips.
- A group of us were swimming at Anna Reeser's house and Nigel Bonnett punched Ellen Weis in the mouth.
- At the show choir competition we played guitar hero all day.
- Alex Chiligiris, Josh Hastings, and Tim Evens tried to make a fire in the woods while it was snowing so they could make hot chocolate.
- Blake Woolard was student of the month...twice.
- We broke the bathroom doors in the middle school.
- The football team was at ISU for a camp and they took a dollar bill and smeared it in poop and put it on the floor above them.
- Jacob Sheary finally grew into his big head.
- Dakota Hollin snorted pills in Romine's class and got expelled.
- Carmen Hatton dated David Hundley.
- Everyone ran outside to recess so we could all pile on the teeter totters and break them in half.
- We gave no "curr"...and still don't.
- Tim Evans, Taylor Sims, and Blake Woolard got arrested.
- Brooke Becton fell in front of the whole school after being introduced at the Homecoming assembly.
- Amy Mandrell pulled the emergency shower thing in jr. high before the basketball game and Anna Reeser yelled "It's chemicals!" and we all jumped on the counters because we were freaked out.
- Jack Powers and Taylor Sims got in a fight at school and drove home together.
- Brian Fredericksen played the dixie horn ringtone like 100 times on the bus to senior trip and Niki Cochran went psycho on him.
- We petitioned to have our recess supervisor fired.
- We had a stoplight in the cafeteria and when it went red we weren't allowed to have recess.
- We did gymnastics in P.E.
- The Jr. High added more rules to the handbook after our class went through.
- Mrs. Bruce chased Kenny through the Jr. High.
- The basketball team won state our freshmen year.
- The Football team won state our freshman year.
- Coach Finck forgot Cheyenne was a senior.. one time, 2x, and even 6x.
- We had more girl fights than guy fights.
- We had to put our names on the board when we got in trouble.
- We dominated in field day our sophomore and senior year.
- We were accused of having rainbow parties in jr. high when we didn't even know what they were.
- Andee Cavanaugh slammed the locker door into Niki Cochran's head on accident and everyone thought they were in a fight.
- Some girls were allowed to wear low tops and super short shorts but other girls weren't.
- Mr. Pine was the best teacher ever and took us all to Weldon Springs in 6th grade for a play day which included a massive mudslide.
- Quavell Hampton won a lap top at post prom and didn't know it because he was in the bathroom.
- Mrs. Vear fell out of her chair ans we were all too scared to laugh until she gave us permission.
- We went "cruising" EVERY weekend second semester.

- We were not allowed to stop at McDonalds on the way home from Six Flags because LeeAnn Hoffman and Maria Arreguin were late to the bus.
- Niki Cochran realized she had 24 colored pencils in her box of 24.
- We borrowed a pencil from Mr. Pine we had to give him our shoe.
- Our girls dominated in powder puff 2 years in a row and broke the record for amount of touchdowns scored in a single game.
- The term "going out" meant holding hands and sitting by each other at lunch.
- All the grade school couples would go kiss in the woods at the park.
- It was chili for lunch and everyone would sprint to the cafeteria for the giant cinnamon rolls that came with it.
- It snowed and we couldn't play during recess if we didn't have snow boots.
- The guys would start mosh pits on the way into the school after recess.
- The track team would play truth or dare in the back of the bus on the way to meets.
- Cody Ortmann and Andrew Cochran rode on top of a car going 100mph down a country road.
- Jacob Sheary puked in Collin Hilburn's front hallway and Alex Colvin puked 20 minutes after he had cleaned it all up.
- Anna Reeser had a party at the end of 6th grade at Michael's house and Andrew Cochran left with others and went for an adventure in the woods and when the parents arrived none of the kids were there.
- Brock Rowland ate a glazed donut covered in taco bell and random hairs.
- Val Sobol tried to teach Amy Mandrell how to jump a hurdle in jr. high, and she did a face plant instead.
- We were playing football and Jacob Sheary got decked by Zack Wakeland.
- We we were playing ditch and Jordan Moore banged on a shed and Wyatt Washburn and Blake Stelzriede had to leap off.
- The guys found out in 6th grade that Val Sobol was jewish so they stole all the kickballs during recess and threw them at her.
- Brooke Becton and Nida Khan threw things across the room to each other in Mrs. Romine's advanced english 2 class.
- Alix Hamilton fainted in Atherton's class.
- The "green shirt guy" tried to dance with every girl on senior trip.
- The Tenacious Trio played dress up at Chelsea Davis's house.
- We were freshmen.
- Cole Aschermann broke Evan Marin's xbox while he was in Florida.
- Justin Barnes and Colleen Rice beat Ryan Swartz up Camel Back.
- John Sanfrey passed out at 5th grade concert practice.
- Justin Barnes, Charlie Leach, and Stephen Haws used to throw tennis balls at each other pretending to be turkeys.
- The guys used to always play tackle football at the Maroa library.
- Jordan Moore got stuck in Jesse Hite's car window at Burger King.
- Jacob Sheary touched Jordan Moore's bare butt while playing zombie at Blake Stelzriede's house.
- Everyone went to the grain bins before every Friday football game in 8th grade.
- The student council was making decorations for the home coming dance on the stage and Nida Khan and Niki Cochran hid in the curtain and scared Michael Scott.
- Andrew Cochran dove down to the bottom on the lake on senior trip and pulled up a scooter.
- Playing Bingo in class with M&M's and Sweetarts

Class of 2010

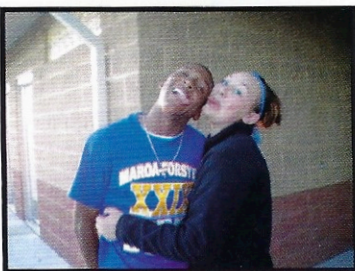

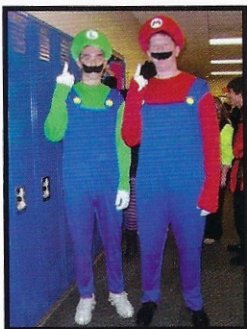

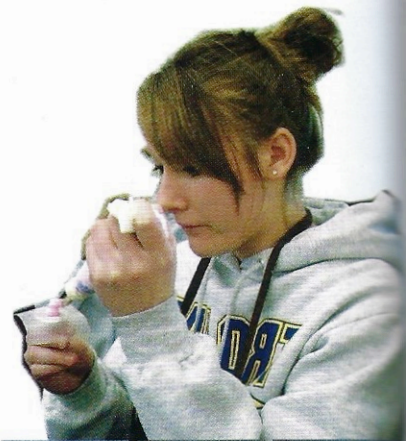

THE WAY WE SEE IT

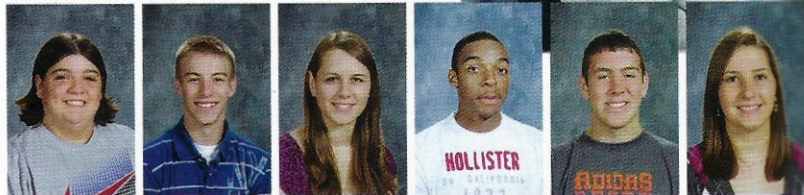

Juniors...

Are one of a kind. Our class creates its own identity. We're full of humor, compassion, brains and athleticism. We'll never forget going to state in 2009 for football, regionals for basketball, state at U of I for poms, homecoming week and all the joys and memories that go along with it.

Nothing. Gets. Better.

Starting this year, the first time a student got caught with their cell phone, he/she was given an after school detention and their phone was taken away until a parent could pick it up.

Throughout the day, lots of students manage to text "under the radar." How do they do it? Some of the most common ways to text in class are under your desk, in your pocket, under papers, inside textbooks, or even on the side of your hip. Be careful though, if your phone keys are too loud when you type, you might get BUSTED!

By using the textbook, D. Hoffman hides his phone.

S. Morgan keeps her cell out of the teachers vision. Students do their best to text when teachers have are out of the room or not looking.

S. Outlaw keeps his phone behind an open notebook to keep texting a secret.

"Here we go again" was the team's inspirational quote for the 2009 football season. The Trojans proved to their fans they were not going to settle for an average record. With the team fighting through numerous injuries, many players had to step up and take a leading role. In addition, the weather was not a helpful aspect for the players: however, they were able to end the season with a record of 11-3 and a 2A State-Runner up Title.

Having been undefeated their freshmen year, the seniors were excited to reunite and show what they were made of. Starting off the season with a loss against Heyworth did not stop the girls. The team quickly learned there is more to the match than how each girl plays. For a team to be able to pull through in the third game when the score is 23-24, they would have to have heart. After every point scored, whether it was lost or gained, the girls would gather in the center of the court with positive attitudes and cheer each other on. The time when the optimism really shined through was during the Macon County championship match against rival St. Teresa. Having lost to St. T in two games earlier in the season the team was ready for revenge. Maroa was able to put up a fight and take St. T to three games. Although Maroa lost in three by 2 points, the girls held their head high because they had left all they had out on the court. Congrats to the volleyball team for their second place in the Macon County trophy and for believing even when no one else did.

This year, the WLMF Boy's soccer team was led by a strong group of seniors. Working hard in practices helped to take home 2nd place at the Jacksonville Tournament, which was one of the biggest accomplishments for the Cardinals this season. This was not only their first year attending the tournament, but they were also out-sized by the other schools. They battled through two tough games, but were defeated by Jacksonville and took home 2nd place.

A unique aspect to the Cardinals' season this year was their late Senior Night celebration. Rather than having it before play-offs, the Cards held their Senior Night after their first regional game (against Heyworth).

This year the Trojan Cheerleaders had a new coach and a new attitude. The girls, along with coach Ashlei Amettis (right), helped cheer the boys' football team to 2nd place in the State Championship. In addition, the cheerleaders performed a new routine for homecoming, decorated the stands for all home games, and made new signs each week for home and away games. With this new found energy, the cheerleading squad was able to up their performance and crowd participation. Go Trojans!

FUNDAMENTALS

1. (adj.) of or relating to essential structure 2. (v) going back to basics (i.e. dribbling, passing, shooting, communication) 3. (adj) of central importance

Traditionally, senior night is one of the most emotional games of the year. This year, not only did senior night mark the last time the seniors would play on their home floor, but it was also one of the most dramatic and intense games of the season. The Trojans maintained the lead for the majority of the game, but then encountered a 4th quarter slump in which they allowed the Monticello Sages to take control. With less than a minute left to play, the Trojans trailed by 1. Coach Cluver called a time-out and drew up the stalling play that would end the game. The Trojans in-bounded the ball and waited until there were less than 10 seconds left before giving the ball to senior Wyatt Washburn on the baseline. With the clock winding down, Wyatt drove along the baseline, leapt over the defender, and sunk the winning lay-up. Although the fans saw the stall as risky, the players remained composed and performed accurately.

"AJ was a captain this season and showed a lot of leadership, both in practice and games. In big games, we knew we could count on AJ to do the little things right. Whether it was diving for a loose ball, or making a defensive stand, he would do whatever it took for us to win."	"Blake was a gym rat. He made himself into a great player and led the team in scoring. He has a great mid-range game and really improved on his long-range shooting. He was a captain, and led with his voice on the floor." Blake was second in rebounds and assists.	"Cubby was our post presence all year, he was the man in the middle and gave us a "go to" guy in the post who could score as well as protect the hoop on defense. He led the team in rebounds, and when he was playing well, you knew the Trojans were going to have a good night."	"Wyatt has run the team since his soph. year. He was a member of the 1,000 pt club, but liked to get everyone involved. He led the team in assists and made great passes to his teammates. His stingy defense and quick hands would get steals and create fastbreaks."	"Bo was our defensive stopper. There were many times this season that we just looked at Bo and said, 'Don't let (key player) touch the ball', and Bo would take care of business. Bo was one of the reasons our defense was so good, but he wasn't afraid to take the big shot."

Exceeding

With 1:00 minute left in the game, the Lady Trojans were losing 30-31, but the game was FAR from over. Amy Mandrell got an offensive rebound that that put the Trojans up 32-31 with 30 seconds remaining. Next, consecutive turnovers by both teams allowed St. Teresa to make an easy lay-up to put them on top 33-32 with less than 20 seconds to go. With the clocking winding down, the Lady Trojans in-bounded the ball to Val Sobol and she drove the length of the floor, and sunk a jump shot to put the Trojans up 34-33.

St. Teresa's Hettinger drew a foul with 4.5 seconds left, but the referees called it on the floor, and when St. T launched a shot at the buzzer, the ball bounced off the back of the rim, and the Trojans won themselves a Regional Title!

What were you thinking during the final seconds of the game?

"After I turned the ball over, all i knew was that I had no choice except to get the ball back and finish the game. If we didn't win, I probably wouldn't have gone home that night."

This season, the Lady Trojans were out to prove themselves. The pre-season prediction for Maroa-Forsyth did not expect a strong, capable team, but through practice and hard work, the Trojans were able to exceed any expectations; perhaps even their own. After taking home 3 second place trophies in the Macon County, Riverton, and Okaw Conference tournaments, they finally received their reward when they cut the net down from their home floor after winning the Regional Championship game against school rival St. Teresa. The team then traveled to Bloomington Central Catholic (BCC) for sectionals where they played Bismark-Henning. Even though the Lady Trojans couldn't pull out a win in this game, their overall season was tremendous success that both the players and coaches will never forget!

This year's lady cardinals soccer team had a big hill to climb from the start of the season. After breaking numerous records the previous year, and not graduating any players, the girls knew they were destined for success. Two tough losses to Charleston and Mahomet Seymore in the early season gave the cards a wake up call, soon enough they were back to knocking area teams down one by one. The MacArthur game was a great example of the Cardinals improvement throughout the season. The top two area teams faced off at MacArthur and early on the Lady Cards took control of the game by dominating 50/50 balls, connecting consecutive passes, and finishing in the back of the net. Maroa captains Val Sobol and Ashley Livingood agreed that that was most likely the best soccer their team has played in a long time. "I just wished we could play that way every game. Working together as a team is the ONLY way to play true soccer," said Val. Then, as the season came to a closing, the Lady Cardinals received the #2 seed in the Monticello Regional with Rochester at #1. The Cards beat LSA in the semi-final game to advance to the championship game against the Rockets. In a tough battle against a very difficult Rochester team, the Cardinals ended their season just short of Regional Championship. The seven seniors will be missed, but the experience they passed on will not be forgotten.

Rebuild. That is one word that describes one of the challenges that the baseball team underwent this year. After losing a strong senior class the previous year, and only having two seniors, the junior players were forced to step up into larger more demanding leadership positions. Fortunately, even with their young squad the Trojans had enough depth in the pitching and hitting areas to take down many of the Okaw and area teams.

2010 was a great season for the Lady Trojans. They ended the season with a record of 21-5. Pride, Dedication, & Hardwork are three words that can be used to sum up the season. Each player everyday whether practice or a game, put their heart into it. Like every team, the Lady Trojans had their ups and downs, but when they got into a groove there was no stopping them. When Coach Applebees' team was in a down period, he sat his team down and they reevaluated and thought about what was needed to be done and got to it. Hardwork is key in every sport, but these ladies took soul definition of it.

This year our MFHS FCCLA Chapter has hit many major milestones this year. We had three students compete in a S.T.A.R (Students Taking Action for Recognition) Event. Tessa Blakey, Logan Runyen, and Hillary Carico got a silver medal in this their event. Also, Molly Harris became the 2010-2011 Vice-President of Section 14.

The FCCLA blood drive is a tradition for MFHS. The week before this semi-annual event, the lower academic hallway is filled with smells of fresh chocolate chip cookies that are sure to get students attention. Whether you sign-up because you want to support the Red Cross, a FCCLA officer convinced you to, or you just want some delicious snacks afterward, all of the donors are deeply thanked for their contribution. This year the blood drive accumulated 94 pints of blood, well beyond their target of 80 pints; thus, earning them a $750.00 scholarship to be divided three ways to any senior who donated blood.

With the addition of many new Senior chorus members, the MFHS choir made this year a great experience. After the feel of watching the Broadway musical "Ragtime", wearing "totally ridiculous" dresses/suits, going to musical rehearsals, and winning an "excellent performance" award, the 09/10 choir has learned the true meaning and feeling of music.

n. 1. The art of arranging sounds in time so as to produce a continuous, unified, and evocative composition, as through melody, harmony, rhythm, and timbre.

Although the MFHS Band was small in number, the sound that the band developed throughout the year has become greater than anyone's expectations. Mr. James gave his band members every piece of advice and encouragement to become great musicians.

The MFHS Show Choir had a very successful year. Although Show Choir involves dancing and singing, it is very different then Poms and Choir. It's different because in Show Choir, you have to dance and sing at the same time! The "Rhythm Riders" were 1st Runner Up in the El Paso Gridley Show Choir Competition.

The story begins when Chad (Hite), a blue-eyed, hip swiveling, guitar strumming roustabout, needs a mechanic to fix his bike and so he turns off the highway and lands in a small midwestern town in 1955. The mechanic turns out to be a girl named Natalie (Tomlovich) who immediately falls madly in love with the tall, dark and handsome stranger, to the chagrin of her unprepossessing best friend Dennis (Riley) who loves her madly. Once Natalie's wistful "Love Me Tender" sets the tone for the core romance, it's on to a welter of romantic subplots. Chad is so blind to Natalie's love that he doesn't even suspect that she's really his sidekick

C. Tomlovich listens as M. Riley sings a song.

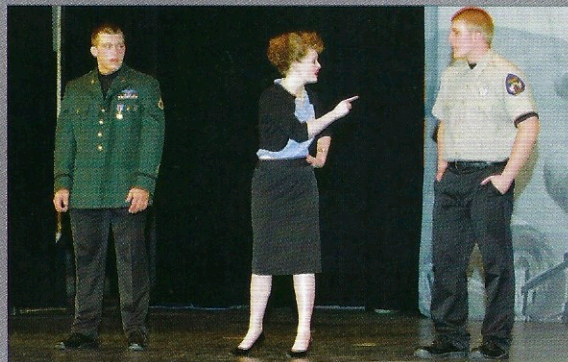

Ed.

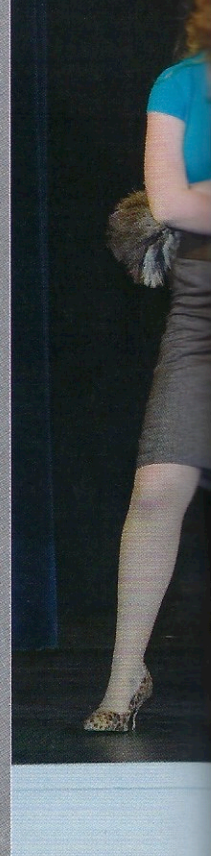

C. Tomlovich, R. Gilbert, S. Rector, & N. Cochran

This is because he is smitten with Miss Sandra (Ritter), the gorgeous blonde museum curator; so is Jim, (Gilbert), Natalie's widowed father. Jim has his own devoted admirer in Sylvia (Rector), the owner of the local saloon. There's also romance between Lorraine (Cochran), Sylvia's teen aged daughter and Dean (Coventry), the tightly reigned-in son of the tyrannical Mayor Matilda Hyde (Mills), who along with a docile Sheriff Earl (Clawson) patrols the streets to keep everyone in the town from having any fun. Based on the plot of Shakespeare's play The Twelfth Night and featuring songs by Elvis Presley, All Shook Up displays the power music has in transforming a town and helping true love prevail.

H. Mills tries to tell B. Clawson what to do. D. Coventry watches in disgust.

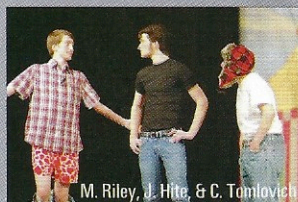

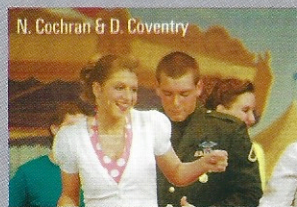

Jesse Hite tries to sing his way into Hannah Ritter's heart.

Competition Highlight

Members of Math Team hoisted Mitchell Lancaster through the bus window in a desperate attempt to unlock the bus from the inside. As soon as Mitchell unlocked the bus, sure enough, the Bus Driver showed up with a very confused look on his face.

Nabeel and Mitchell work together to solve their problems before time is called.

Senior Matt Cummings pretends to be working on his set of problems for the Junior/Senior 8 person team. Anyone on Math Team knows that "Cummings" wouldn't write anything, this must be a fake.

Varsity

The MFHS scholastic bowl team is known throughout the area for being laid-back yet formidable. The average varsity practice attendance was 4 people. Interestingly enough, there are 5 people playing at a time. The varsity team still played well, winning 3rd at the Okaw Tournament and finished their season in 2nd at Regionals. The seniors will be missed, along with their 6 years of experience.

New Students

Entering a new high school part way into the school year, or even second semester is always a difficult adjustment. Making new friends and learning the norms of a new school is never easy and takes time. Also, for Farheen, being a foreign exchange student is not any easier. Not only did she have to adjust to our ways of schooling, but she had to adapt to an entirely new country, state, and town.

Yearbook

For the first time in school history, the MFHS Yearbook Club raised enough money to get out of debt. They used many unique fundraisers including a Pancake Breakfast and a P.N.O (Parents Night OUT). Even though the members were probably sick of Val telling them to get there pages done, they eventually completed the book by early July.

Over the course of this year, editor Val Sobol and coeditor Niki Cochran went from relaxed, organized, and laid back to dictators who were cramming pages and most of all completely out of their minds.

Cole Aschermann

If you don't know Cole Aschermann, he was voted Homecoming attendant 3 years in a row, was the 2009 Homecoming King, was on Prom Court, started football for 3 years, was on the basketball team, and is known to have originated some of the classic lines throughout the years. Cole's favorite quote however, can be applied to nearly everything you can think of, whether it fits or not, just try it sometime:

"There's always next year."

Power Clean

Wesley Beach won both the clean and bench this year against Gary Scott (behind). Wesley cleaned 275 lbs and benched 265.

Tyler Marsh had a clean sweep with three 1st place medals. Tyler benched 310lbs, squatted 405lbs, and cleaned 250lbs.

Bench

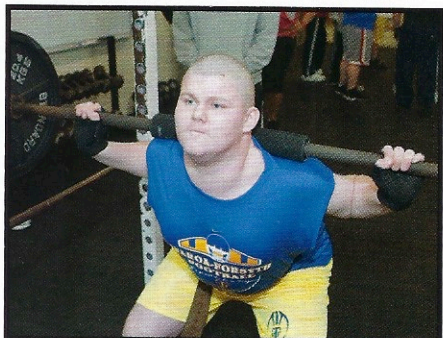

Dalton Coventry had clean sweep wins with a bench of 360, a squat of 415, and a clean of 250lbs.

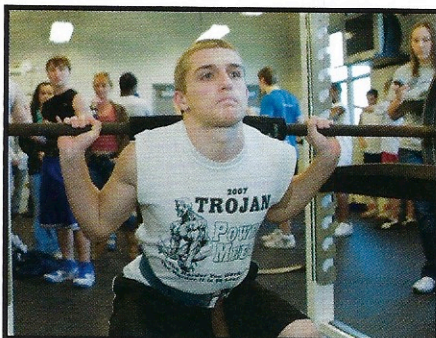

Squat

Gary Scott beat out Wesley Beach to get 1st in squat with a lift of 395lbs. Gary and Wesley competed all-day, and in every event because they were the only two in their weight class.

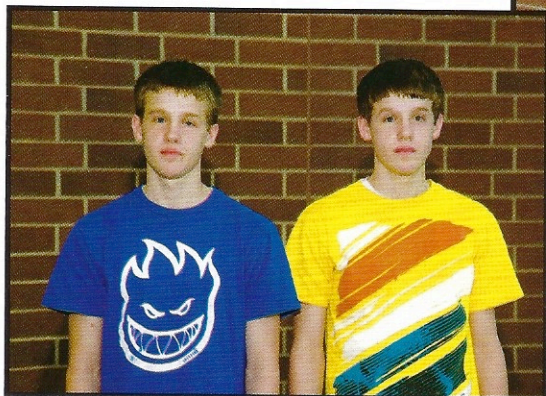

Michael Corrigan got 2nd place in the 211-224 weight class with a squat of 340lbs.

Kyle Greenwell earned 3rd place in squat for the 126-140 weight class with a squat of 265lbs. He also took 3rd in bench with 175.

This years prom theme "As Time Goes By" was selected by the Junior Class officers. The officer team included: Nabeel Khan, Colin Chastain, Katie O'Riley, Molly Harris, Hannah Mills, Tanner Clawson, and Bridget Ollesch. These officers made some unique changes to the formal dinner style of prom. Instead of having the traditional plated dinner, the juniors proposed a buffet. For the main meal, attendees were able to create their own pasta with as many additions as they would like. After dinner: however, the real party began. When the dance started, the DJ surprised many dancers when they saw themselves dancing on the projection screen. Still, once again the dance turned into a hot, sweaty, cramped, and fantastic mess that MFHS wouldn't like any other way.

JUST FOR Fun

T. Marsh

The word to describe this year's post prom would be change. Instead of being at the school for our activities the parents decided to move post prom to the Decatur Disc. Unsure as to what to expect the weary students filed in around midnight to find being at the Disc was as much, if not more, fun than being at the school. All of the same inflatables and casino games were there but instead of only offering basketball there was also soccer, volleyball, a rock climbing wall, and a golf stimulator. The parents also decided to offer tickets to the students who participated in the activities to put towards the prize they wanted to win. There was a wide variety of prizes ranging from lap tops and HD TV's to $100 gift certificates to gas stations and favorite restaurants. Towards the end of the night a different hypnotist from previous years came and put on show. He was able to show his crowd a good time and even made some laughed till they cried. Nobody will forget when Jay Porter took off his shoe and threw it into the prize boxes. For some students this was their last post prom and with the new location, many different activities and prizes the memories which were created will last them a life time.

The minutes may fade but the

Every year the one thing seniors look forward to is being able to go to Osage Beach for their senior trip. The weekend started off early on a Saturday morning with a 6 hour bus ride. This year the senior class was lucky enough to have Gary as their bus driver. Throughout the trip Gary would spontaneously inform the seniors of random facts such as how to tell whether a cow is right handed or left handed. Once they arrived the seniors were let loose and told to have fun because it would be the last weekend they would all ever be together as a class. Out of the three days they were there Sunday was by far the most fun and definitely the most memorable. After the annual old time photo, the night was filled with laser tagging, go karts, dancing, and best of all jumping in the lake. Even though the weather had be cloudy and the water colder than ice, the seniors decided they had to do something to make their trip memorable, so hand in hand they took a leap of faith into the night they would never forget.

And So...

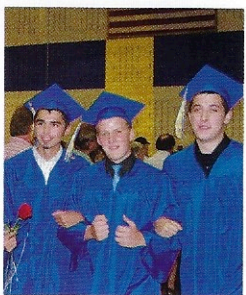

Unfortunately, the comical theme that Hannah O'Neil tried to create was interrupted by multiple children crying in the audience. Without hesitation however, Hannah delivered her speech with poise and managed to make the seniors laugh.

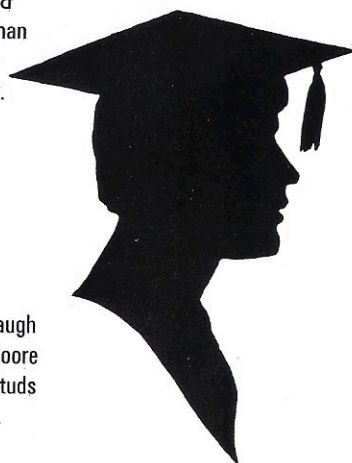

Mallory Keith & David Reischman happy to have finally made it.

Andee Cavanaugh and Jordan Moore walking like studs down the isle.

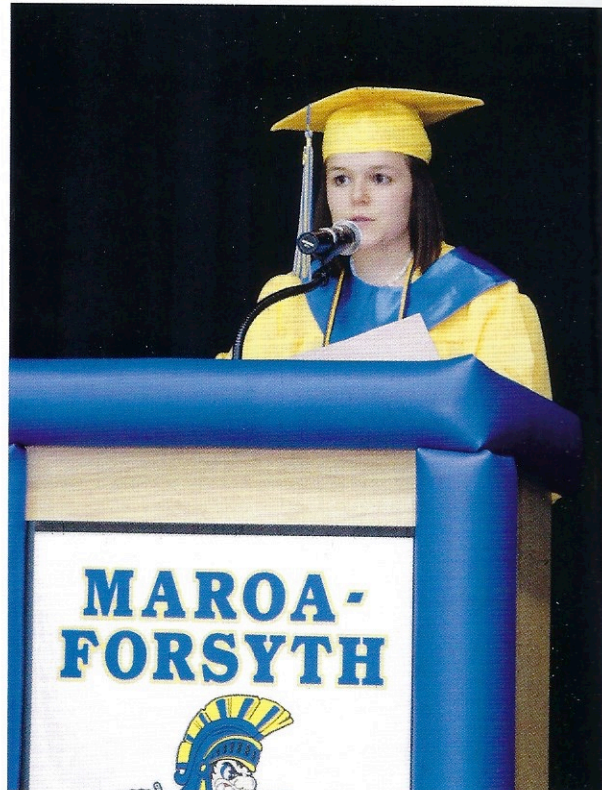

Evan Marin, Stephen Haws, and Chris Coloni are the last of the graduates to walk down the isle.

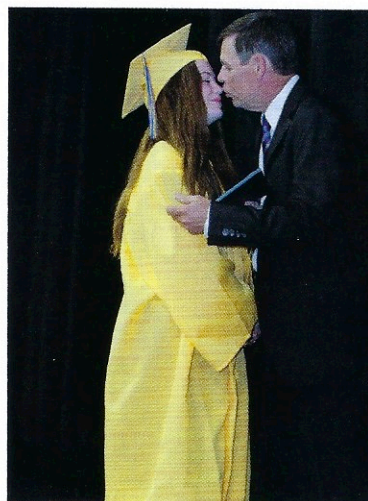

A New Chapter

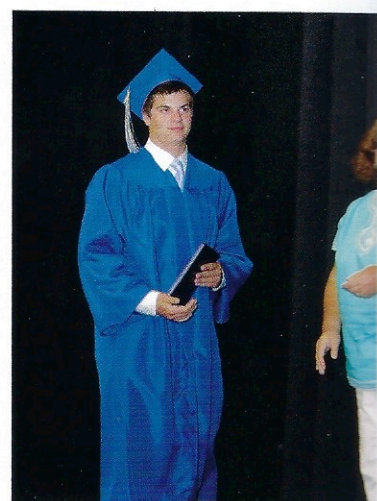

Graduation can bring out numerous emotions. Whether you feel sad, happy, anxious, nervous, grateful, scared, relieved, stressed, or just content, this ceremony affects everyone differently. Some attendees dreaded this year's graduation. No, not because their friends were moving on or that their brothers/sisters were leaving home, but merely because they didn't want to sit through seven speeches. For this reason, the six valedictorians and saludictorian kept their speeches short and unique by evoking a different emotion with each speaker. As names were called, students walked across the stage, shook hands and received diplomas; but more importantly than that, the MFHS Class of 2010 opened and began a new chapter in their lives. And, on the 28th of May, all 84 of these talented, bright students walked in and out of Maroa-Forsyth for the last time as students and for the first time as graduates.

Senior chorus members singing "Thankful" to represent our gratitude for those who have supported us.

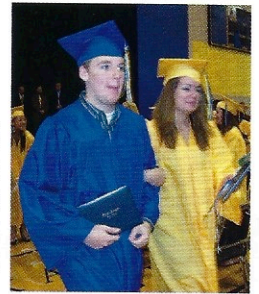

M. Hatton receives her diploma and a kiss from her father Randy Hatton.

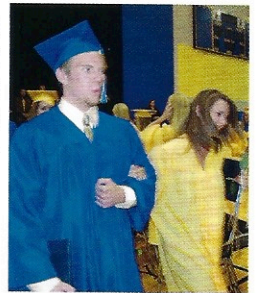

Brian Frederickson receives his diploma with grace

*Don't cry because it is over, smile because it

As Andrew Cochran receives his diploma from Randy Hatton, he holds it up to audience with great joy. I'm sure his parents were proud and relieved to see this moment. Andrew and Niki were the last of the Cochran's to come through Maroa-Forsyth, at least for the next few years.

Hello students, teachers, parents, family, and friends

The class of 2010 has certainly made many wonderful memories over the past four years and has left its unique mark on Maroa Forsyth H.S.

Throughout our high school career we have developed our foundation that will lead us into the future.

In developing our foundation we have overcome many obstacles and have grown up together. We have learned not just to stand on our own, but to lean on one another as we build each other up. The greatest memories have come from the relationships we have established in our H.S. years.

As we look back it will be these relationships we miss the most. times we laughed, the times we cried, the times we stumbled and the times we soared to new heights.

We all have our own memories we will never forget, one of mine was when our class went on our senior trip.

On the last night the DJ played a "Graduation Song," which was about all the great friends we made, the wonderful times we had, and how we will have to say good bye to this chapter of our lives as we move on to the next chapter.

Although we are saddened that some relationships will end, we are excited about graduation and the new opportunities that await us as we blaze new trails.

MAY GOD BLESS THE CLASS OF 2010!!

Josh Cox

"In this day and age, some turn 18 and think they're a man or a woman and that's it, but that's just not true. You have to establish your manhood or your womanhood with actions." This quote spoken by Orlando McGuire shows he had a clear grasp on the phenomenon known as maturity. Returning as seniors last fall, we, the class of 2010, were in awe it was our last year at Maroa-Forsyth High School. Although a lot of us felt we were not mature enough for college, I look back upon the last four years and notice we also have grasped the concept of maturity. Our actions have undoubtedly made us the young men and women who are seated in front of me today.

Four years ago, our infamous reputations preceded us into the high school setting. We were known as the class who spent more time in the hallways than in class, who didn't follow directions at recess, and who were overall rowdy hoolligans. Although we weren't the most mature class, we had what many classes did not: brains, athleticism, and creativity, these attributes became evident as our high school careers progressed.

Our sophomore and junior years passed as quickly as they came. Playing hide and go seek in Wal-Mart and running around aimlessly wasn't as appealing anymore. Instead we focused on our relationships, getting our licenses, and begging our parents to extend our curfews. ACT preparation began junior year. We spent more time talking than actually studying. In fact, our teachers and parents were more stressed than we were, but we managed to exude our maturity and obtained the highest average ACT and PSAT scores in the district. Clearly the class of 2010 was more mature than we let on and our actions as men and women had finally started to shine through.

Then finally last August we entered high school as seniors. Senioritis hit most of us before we even finished the first day, and it was incredible to think that everything we did was our last... our last homecoming game, our last dances, our last sport seasons, and our last time cheering on the football team at state. Cherishing each moment with our friends and family, it became apparent our excitement to leave high school would be paired with a hint of sorrow. Finally when the day came to empty our lockers, and say good-bye, we were more glum than what we expected.

Standing in front of you all today, I realize that I am no longer looking at the same personalities I met six years ago; instead I am looking at future lawyers, doctors, farmers, mothers, fathers, athletes, and politicians. They say, "growing up isn't easy," but the class of 2010 is a prime contradiction to this statement. We have matured into the fine young adults and will further prosper in the next chapters of our lives.

So the class of 2010, I say we go and show the world what kind of men and women we really are.

-Nida Khan

On Tuesday, everyone was asking me if I was excited, if I was nervous, and all I could say was I was indifferent. I kept wondering, "what is the matter with me?" But now, having thought more about it and taking a good look around, I realize something. It is impossible that we are now adults, headed for the real world. There is no way. Just this week, people had come to school in crazy, outdated wind suits, arguments broke out over who would take the lunch table garbage, and games of keep away using Dobby's camera were kept going entire class periods. Crying and I were shouting and fighting trying to keep the other from opening their locker, I always lose, of course. And, Ben and Steve were in class, each trying to catch the other off guard so they could slap them in the face. I mean, Wow. Sounds like the type of people who are thought of as ready for adulthood and the "real world," right?

There has been no reaction on my part, no sadness, no panic, because honestly nothing has changed. We are still the same kids who terrorized the grade school, breaking every teeter-totter on the playground, the same people who argue for the legitimacy of Wikipedia with every teacher, every year. Who cares that Wikipedia tells us Elvis is still alive? It is not possible that we are any different from the people who just last week were still putting more effort into getting out of a project than doing it, still pulling out obscure holidays in the hopes of getting a fiesta in Spanish class, and still hoping for subs that have no idea how to explain the math homework. I feel like they don't know how to do it, why should we?

While all our teachers and parents are shouting into us the idea that we are now adults, I am wondering, where is this magic potion that we drink and automatically turn into grown ups? I mean, hey, maybe they will slip it to us with our diplomas or something, but as of yet I've seen no miraculous transformations.

Perhaps, this is because they are not coming. Despite the fact that all of us will be heading out to college, the work force, or the armed services; we are still just the same, goofy kids we've always been. We are still stubborn, insubordinate, and live to goof-off. And I hope, instead of outgrowing this behavior, we embrace it. All the determination we have when defending Wikipedia, can be used to defend the causes we will come to support. All our goofing off, can be used when the real world becomes just too much to handle. And all our defiance can be put to making our own happiness rather than following other's ideas of happiness. I just hope that all of us are able to look back and say, ten years later and I still feel like a child. Because as kids we have not only the knowledge we've gained, but the recklessness to use it as we see fit, and as Ayn Rand put it, "The question will not be who is going to let me, it will be who is going to stop me."

-Hannah O'Neil

Good evening, fellow Trojans, I'd like to start by honoring our principal-Scott Adreon, our superintendent-Mike Williams, our teachers with special thanks to Tina Leach, and especially out there behind the students, and in the bleachers, our far more important guests, the ones who we owe all our love and credit for our accomplishments, the ones we've seemed to live with endlessly, but really never thank enough, our families and parents.

Tonight we're here to celebrate and more importantly to show our appreciation and gratitude, but most of all, we're here to honor ourselves, all 83 of us. I'm up here and I know I am not really #1, not #2, or even #3, but I'm simply an equal part of the 83, as we ALL are. We are the class of 2010

So, who is this class of 2010? I'm talking about more than the names that will soon be read as we walk across the stage. We are all individuals that have made a contribution in our own special way to the identity that we share. Sure, we have our preps, our geeks, our screwballs, our rebels, and so on-take me for example, I'm a jerk, and some of you would also say I'm a nerd, but the label isn't really who I am, because when you peel off the layers, there is a whole lot more to me and the same goes for ALL of us.

We owe a great deal of gratitude to our teachers, our parents & families, of that there is no doubt-BUT the excitement we feel now will hopefully serve as the driving force we need to fulfill the goals we set for ourselves as we grew up: whether we be a cheerleader, a doctor or I want to be a chef or I want to be a racecar driver". These dreams can be realized with the effort we have put forth to reach here today, with the continued assistance of our friends, families and teachers, and with all of the hard work we will all encounter in the future. We take our happiness and exhilaration with a grain of salt, however. We must remember where we came from and keep where we are going in sight. But as I remember how we have grown over the past four years of school, I can only imagine the success the future brings for us, the class of 2010, the class that the high school feared and was famous for being ornery. We have shown that we have oceans of potential and plan on proving that we are a formidable force. As Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "Do not go where the path may lead; go instead where there is no path and leave a trail."

Hopefully, we can blaze trails of our successes everywhere, leaving evidence of our victories for all to see.

We leave the past behind and speed toward the unknown. We set out for far off places as we try to find ourselves. This school nurtured us, matured us and gave us the resilience to face the world outside of the playground's boundaries. And I wish the class of 2010 the best of luck in the future. I hope our excitement is long-lived and inspirational and my fellow classmates, I wish all of you the best of luck in finding whatever it is that you are looking for.

-Divya Verma

Welcome to friends, faculty and family. Thank you for patiently listening to all of our speeches. I promise you, I am the last speaker.

If you were to ask a senior how they feel about finally graduating, the responses you would get would be extremely varied. I think the best general answer would be "emotional". You could be like Nikki Cochran, who has cried multiple times this week. You could be like Matt Cummings, emotionally stagnant. Or you could be like various other members of the class of 2010, extremely excited to finally be leaving our home away from home for the past four years. Whatever the reaction, it is hard not to be full of powerful emotions as we leave behind the place where we matured, made friends, and learned for so long.

The excitement that many of us are feeling at this moment is substantial and exhilarating. I look at everyone here today, and realize how ready most of us are to close this memorable chapter of our lives. And even if we aren't quite ready, even if we're going to cry while watching the senior video here in a few minutes, the rest of the world is ready for us. Our dreams are ready to be met head on with the excitement that I love a graduating class to excellence in academics, athletics and the arts.

The excitement we feel now will hopefully serve as the driving force we need to fulfill the goals we set for ourselves as we grew up: whether we be a cheerleader, a doctor or I want to be a chef or I want to be a racecar driver". These dreams can be realized with the effort we have put forth to reach here today, with the continued assistance of our friends, families and teachers, and with all of the hard work we will all encounter in the future.
